To Whom It May Concern,

Seth Macute is a member of the LifeTime Tennis Academy, an academy with a proud history of developing players to International level. Former members of the academy are Pat Rafter (Former World No 1 and Australian of the Year), Kerry-Anne Guse (Former world top 50 player), John Millman (Current world no 36 and Australian Davis Cup player), as well as many state and national champions.

Seth has been the number one player in St Joseph's Nudgee College representative First 4 team and one of the leading players in his age group in Queensland each year since he was 12yrs of age. Seth has passion for the game and a dream to play on the international stage in the future. Seth has also been employed by LifeTime International as an assistant tennis coach for the last three years because of the special qualities he possesses as a person. LifeTime senior leadership group consider Seth a person of significant ability as both player and coach and he would be an asset to any organization considering an application from him.

I can be contacted on the numbers above should you require further information.
